Practice Areas

At Keller Lenkner, we represent plaintiffs in complex litigation matters. Unlike many plaintiffs' firms, we don't limit our practice to certain types of claims or areas of law. Our diverse team has experience litigating cases across a wide variety of practice areas, which allows us to be flexible and responsive to our clients' needs. Regardless of the substantive claims involved, one thing is true about all our cases: they give us the opportunity to use our unique skills and resources to help our clients solve problems and vindicate their rights.

We have brought antitrust claims against some of the largest and best-known corporations in the world—and we are confident in our team's vast experience, knowledge and capabilities to successfully litigate these cases.

Arbitration

We help our clients level the playing field when contracts written by defendants force them into arbitration. Our attorneys' legal acumen matches our technical expertise, which allows us to skillfully litigate even the most complicated privacy claims.

Product Liability

With extensive experience handling claims associated with products (including with suppliers, manufacturers, and sellers), our attorneys play key roles in some of the most significant product liability multidistrict litigation proceedings in the country. Antitrust Practice

At Keller Lenkner, our attorneys stand up as the voice for consumers against predatory business practices and work tenaciously to ensure fair competition for all businesses in the market. Our team has experience litigating a wide variety of antitrust cases on behalf of competing businesses (which deserve an equal playing field) and consumers (who have a right to fair prices, more service choices, and better products).

CASE HIGHLIGHT: KLEIN V. FACEBOOK, INC.

Keller Lenkner represents a putative class of Facebook users in a class-action lawsuit against Facebook, Inc. for violating federal antitrust laws and California law. The suit, filed in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California, alleges that Facebook illegally obtained a monopoly by exploiting user data and deceiving consumers about data privacy. According to the complaint, Facebook did not achieve its monopoly through innovation or vigorous competition. Instead—and despite its public pledge to protect user privacy—Facebook lied to users and violated their trust in a scheme to build its empire. Facebook also acquired technology from smaller firms that it used to track consumer activity across the internet so it could identify and target competitors, with the intention of destroying or acquiring them.

CASE HIGHLIGHT: THE STATE OF TEXAS V. GOOGLE LLC

Keller Lenkner represents the State of Texas, North Dakota, and Idaho in the States' antitrust litigation against Google. Filed in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Texas, the suit alleges that Google monopolized products and services used by advertisers and publishers in online-display advertising. The complaint also alleges that Google engaged in false, misleading, and deceptive acts while selling, buying, and auctioning online-display ads. Google also entered into an unlawful agreement with rival Facebook to maintain control of the marketplace for header bidding. These anticompetitive and deceptive practices demonstrably diminished publishers' ability to monetize content, increased advertisers' costs to advertise, and directly harmed consumers.

CASE HIGHLIGHT: VAN IDERSTINE V. LIVE NATION ENTERTAINMENT, INC.

Keller Lenkner represents a putative class of Ticketmaster customers who allege that the company and its parent company, Live Nation, illegally monopolized the market for online ticket sales. The case, in the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California, alleges that Ticketmaster and Live Nation have used their dominance to stifle competition, control ticket sales, and inflate ticket prices. As the largest promoter of concerts at major U.S. venues, Live Nation purposely reinforces Ticketmaster's dominance by threatening to withhold shows from those venues that do not work with both companies.

Antitrust Practice

CASE HIGHLIGHT: JOLLY V. INTUIT INC.

Keller Lenkner represents thousands of individuals pursuing antitrust and consumer-protection claims against Intuit, based on allegations that TurboTax colluded with H&R Block in the online tax filing market. The consumers allege they were steered into paying for Intuit's tax preparation services instead of receiving free services to which they were entitled. Intuit initially agreed to give consumers access to the IRS's Free File Program. But Intuit heavily marketed and purposely steered taxpayers to its own "Free Edition" tax filing program which, despite its title, required users to pay fees they would not have paid under the IRS's program.

Arbitration Practice

Keller Lenkner has won numerous precedent-setting victories requiring defendants to comply with their obligation to arbitrate disputes individually. In just two years, we have secured more than $200 million in settlements for more than 100,000 individual workers and consumers in these matters.

Keller Lenkner's pioneering arbitration practice is a clear example of the innovation and creativity our firm brings to the plaintiff's bar. We believe in our clients' cases, first and foremost. Our team and vast resources ensure that defendants cannot use forced arbitration clauses to escape responsibility for their misconduct.

REUTERS

"If Keller Lenkner [is] right—if companies imposed arbitration not as a good-faith way to expedite individual workers' claims, but as a way to assure that workers wouldn't assert their rights—then mass arbitration calls their bluff."

CASE HIGHLIGHT: DOORDASH

Represented by Keller Lenkner, more than 6,000 underpaid DoorDash couriers filed demands for arbitration against the delivery service. United States District Judge William Alsup of the Northern District of California issued an order that compelled DoorDash to abide by the arbitration clause it imposed on workers after the firm failed to meet deadlines or pay fees. DoorDash was compelled to arbitration.

"This hypocrisy will not be blessed... Faced with having to actually honor its side of the bargain, [DoorDash] now blanches at the cost of the filing fees it agreed to pay in the arbitration clause. No doubt, DoorDash never expected that so many would actually seek arbitration," said Judge Alsup.

CASE HIGHLIGHT: POSTMATES

Represented by Keller Lenkner, more than 5,000 underpaid couriers for Postmates filed demands for arbitration against the delivery app. The court ordered Postmates to arbitrate with our clients. It also imposed sanctions under the new law, known as California Senate Bill 707—including requiring Postmates to pay our clients' attorneys' fees and costs in each individual arbitration, regardless of who wins.

"I'm completely unsympathetic to [Postmates'] argument... Your complaint really is with AAA, and you chose them. You have agreements with these individual drivers, and they didn't do anything wrong from my vantage point," said Judge Paul Watford of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in an early appellate hearing.

Arbitration Practice

CASE HIGHLIGHT: INTUIT

Keller Lenkner represents Intuit customers who allege that the company deceived them into paying for tax preparation services when they were eligible for a free version of Turbo Tax that the IRS required Intuit to provide. Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Terry Green ruled that Intuit cannot avoid arbitration with nearly 10,000 of our clients.

"I enjoy this as an art form, as well as an intellectual exercise, as well as being committed to saying due process is done... Let's give the [Keller Lenkner firm], you know, a toast. Good work. It's good work," said Judge Green.

Privacy Practice

As we become more dependent on technology, we are increasingly susceptible to companies that use illegal practices to access our data for their own commercial gain. At Keller Lenkner, we firmly believe that no one should have to sacrifice a reasonable expectation of privacy in exchange for modern convenience, particularly without knowledge or consent. Our firm is committed to helping protect our clients' personal privacy through cases based on state and federal statutes.

CASE HIGHLIGHT: AMAZON ALEXA CLASS ACTIONS

In June 2019, Keller Lenkner filed class-action lawsuits in California and Washington against Amazon because its Alexa devices routinely record minor children without consent.

In addition to processing user commands, Amazon's Alexa technology permanently saves recordings of its users' voices on Amazon servers. These recordings are later analyzed to create "voiceprints" that are recognizable by all Alexa-enabled devices. Although Amazon purports to obtain consent from adult users through the device-registration process, children are also frequent users of these devices. Children are never required to provide consent to be recorded; nor are their parents required to give consent on their behalf. Amazon's voice-printing practice enables intensely invasive activities, such as tracking children's use of Alexa-enabled devices and matching those uses to their personal details, solely for the company's commercial benefit.

Recording a person's voice implicates a special privacy interest that many states have protected through specific statutes that prohibit recordings without consent. Our clients' class-action lawsuits seek money damages for each violation of those state laws as well as an order that would force Amazon to delete all existing voice recordings of minor children and discontinue its practice of recording minor children without consent.

CASE HIGHLIGHT: ILLINOIS BIOMETRIC INFORMATION PRIVACY ACT

Biometric identifiers like fingerprints and retina scans are used for everything from unlocking computers to accessing ATMs. The Illinois Biometric Information Privacy Act, or BIPA, is the country's most stringent biometric privacy law. BIPA requires anyone who records biometric information to get informed consent before doing so, and to create a publicly available retention policy so people can be assured that their sensitive biometric data won't be disclosed without their knowledge. Although BIPA has existed for more than a decade, companies are still capturing biometric information in Illinois without explaining the implications of that capture to their employees and customers.

At Keller Lenkner, we represent groups of individuals who have had their biometric information wrongfully recorded without consent by employers and technology platforms alike. Our goal is to make sure that sensitive biometric information is only given up knowingly, and that employers and other firms take responsibility for protecting that information once it comes into their possession.

Product-Liability Practice

Product-liability claims are as varied as the products available on the market. We represent plaintiffs in complex product-liability litigation, including class or mass actions in which multiple people were injured or affected by the same product or class of products. Our team has experience litigating product-liability claims involving pharmaceuticals, medical devices, and a wide variety of other consumer products.

Our product-liability practice represents thousands of clients in a dozen consolidated actions throughout the country. The firm litigates cases directly, receives referrals from co-counsel, and acts as co-counsel with other leading plaintiffs' firms.

Federal courts have also recognized Keller Lenkner's talents through appointments to plaintiffs' leadership positions in three product-liability MDLs:

- Partner Ashley Keller chairs the Law & Briefing Committee in the Zantac (Ranitidine) MDL.
- Partner Nicole Berg sits on the Law & Briefing Subcommittee in the 3M Combat Arms Earplug MDL and also the Plaintiffs' Executive Committee for the Paragard IUD Products Liability Litigation MDL.
- Associate Ashley Barriere leads the Law & Briefing Committee for the Onglyza and Kombiglyze XR MDL.

CASE HIGHLIGHT: 3M COMBAT ARMS EARPLUGS MULTIDISTRICT LITIGATION

Keller Lenkner has filed lawsuits against manufacturer 3M and related companies on behalf of military service members who used Combat Arms Earplugs during training and while deployed on active duty. The suits allege that the earplugs failed to protect service members from hearing loss and other damage. Evidence suggests that the manufacturer was aware of a defect in the product's design and falsified test results to secure an exclusive contract with the U.S. Department of Defense. Potentially thousands more lawsuits may be filed, as records show that more than 800,000 service members suffer from hearing damage despite having used 3M's product.

CASE HIGHLIGHT: ZANTAC (RANITIDINE) MULTIDISTRICT LITIGATION

The Zantac MDL coordinates suits accusing Pfizer Inc., Sanofi SA, Boehringer Ingelheim Pharmaceuticals Inc. and GlaxoSmithKline LLC—as well as generic makers, distributors, pharmacies and others in the supply chain—of false advertising, failure to warn, and other claims associated with cancer-causing NDMA. The FDA has set an allowable daily limit of 96 nanograms of NDMA, but researchers have found more than 3 million nanograms in a single dose of Zantac.

Product-Liability Practice

CASE HIGHLIGHT: ONGLYZA AND KOMBIGLYZE XR MULTIDISTRICT LITIGATION

This MDL involves individuals who took Onglyza (saxagliptin) and Kombiglyze XR (saxagliptin and metformin) to treat Type 2 diabetes. The plaintiffs represented by Keller Lenkner allege that the drugs caused serious cardiac complications. Defendants Bristol-Myers Squibb and AstraZeneca began selling the drugs in 2009 and 2010, before completing a cardiac risk study recommended by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. The study was completed in 2013 and showed that saxagliptin users had a significantly increased risk of hospitalization due to heart failure.

CASE HIGHLIGHT: PARAGARD IUD MULTIDISTRICT LITIGATION

The Paragard IUD MDL coordinates suits accusing Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc., Teva Women's Health, Inc., The Cooper Companies Inc., and CooperSurgical Inc. of failing to warn users of the risks posed by the Paragard copper intrauterine device (IUD). The plaintiffs allege that their Paragard IUDs broke apart, leaving behind pieces of the device, which sometimes embedded in their uterus. The breakage caused serious complications and injuries, including surgeries to remove the broken pieces of the device, infertility, and pain.

Warren has helped build Keller Lenkner's arbitration practice, which devotes unparalleled resources to resolving the claims of consumers and employees who are subject to forced arbitration clauses. The firm's commitment to arbitration allows it to aggressively pursue individual arbitrations for tens of thousands of clients simultaneously and, as described by the New York Times, has left defendants "scared to death." Warren has won numerous precedent-setting victories requiring defendants to comply with their obligation to arbitrate under agreements they drafted.

Due in large part to the arbitration practice Warren has built at Keller Lenkner, the rise of "mass arbitrations" has been one of the most significant developments in civil litigation over the last two years.

Before joining Keller Lenkner, Warren was Vice President and Chief Counsel for Appellate Litigation at the U.S. Chamber Litigation Center.
